Stop & Shake Initiative
A Success in Yonkers

The simple thought of stopping during the course of our busy days to shake the hand of a Yonkers police officer on the job was the idea of Hector Santiago who, with the participation and support of Mayor Mike Spano and the Yonkers Police Department, is the founder of the Stop & Shake Initiative, which encourages more communication between police officers and the public.

"The first step in building a personal relationship between the community and the police starts with a common greeting—the handshake," said Santiago, who served as master of ceremonies for an event held this week at Yonkers YMCA, to recognize those who have made Stop & Shake a success.

Mitten & Scarf Tree Grows Again at St. Anthony’s

One of the great holiday traditions in Yonkers is the yearly donation drive at St. Anthony’s Church in Nepera Park, called the “Mitten and Scarf Tree.” Parishioners place a new hat or scarf on one of the church’s Christmas trees, eventually going to someone who needs them during the winter.

This year’s collection was better than ever, with approximately 400 mittens, scarves and gifts collected, and was shared with the Sharing Community and St. Joseph Church on Ashburton Avenue to bring joy to children.

Drivers Sought for People Needing Rides to Treatment

Sometimes the biggest challenge in cancer care is getting to and from treatment. The American Cancer Society says that more than 1,000 cancer patients need help getting to and from treatment centers to get the care they need. But according to the society, many volunteers are expected to help boost patient numbers heading south in early 2016, leaving many cancer pa-ents and their caregivers in need of a ride to the cancer center.

For more information, contact Palacios-Perez at 914-568-2414 or pstrongbastien@riversidehealth.org.

The Westchester County Board of Health wants to recognize volunteer efforts of adults and children who help patients access the care they need. The board is asking for nominations from the public on people who have made outstanding contributions to public health in Westchester. Nominations for the anual public health service awards are due to the board by Feb. 1.

The Distinguished Public Health Service Award is presented annually to a person or community-based organization whose efforts serve the public health of Westchester residents, but who is not professionally engaged in public health work. The Dr. Tessa Young Public Health Service Award recognizes creative contributions to public health by young people. The award was created in 2014 in honor of Tessa Young, a former board member, and is presented by the Westchester County Board of Health.

Both awards are announced and presented in April to spotlight National Public Health Week.

"The health department and the Board of Health rely on creative partnerships with the community," said Newton Nakashima, president of the Westchester County Board of Health. "By shining a spotlight on those who have made a difference, we hope to inspire more people and organizations to join us in this work, which is so vital to the health of our community."

Last year, the Youth Public Health Service Award went to Sarah Illesz, an Azrak teenager who developed an Instagram mobile application that creates a supportive community for young people with type 1 diabetes. She also ran a 30-mile race and funds for diabetes research. The Distinguished Public Health Service Award was presented to the Board of Education and members of the health literacy initiatives.

The alarming increase in judgments reached record highs in 2015.

"The alarming increase in judgments reached record highs in 2015. Our department has seen a dramatic increase in the number of judgments issued in the past year. In 2014, we handled approximately 1,144 judgments, whereas in 2015, we handled over 1,673. This trend is likely to continue in the coming years, as the backlog of pending cases grows.

The increase in judgments is due to several factors. First, the economy is improving, which means that people are more likely to default on their debts. Second, the courts are becoming more efficient, which means that cases are being handled more quickly. Finally, the state is seeing a reduction in its budget, which means that it is able to invest more in the judicial system.

As a result of this increase in judgments, the courts are facing a significant workload. The number of cases handled by the court increased by 20% in 2015, compared to the previous year. This has led to delays in processing cases, and a backlog of pending cases.

The increase in judgments is also having a significant impact on the economy. The cost of legal fees is rising, and the number of individuals who cannot afford legal representation is increasing. This is a problem that needs to be addressed, as it is affecting the ability of individuals to access justice.

In conclusion, the increase in judgments reached record highs in 2015, and this trend is likely to continue in the coming years. The courts are facing a significant workload, and the cost of legal fees is rising. This is a problem that needs to be addressed, as it is affecting the ability of individuals to access justice.

The alarming increase in judgments reached record highs in Westchester County in 2015 is indicative of a foreclosure crisis that continues to linger.

In 2015, the number of judgments reached a new high in Westchester County, with over 1,673 judgments filed in the Westchester County Clerk’s Office. This is a 40% increase from the previous year.

The increase in judgments is due to several factors, including the economic downturn, the high cost of legal fees, and the lack of affordable housing. As a result, many homeowners are unable to keep up with their mortgage payments, and are forced to file for judgments.

The impact of these judgments is significant, as they place a financial burden on the affected homeowners, and lead to a decrease in the value of their properties. In addition, the increase in judgments is contributing to the overall decline in the real estate market in Westchester County.

Oscar Isaac

Isaac won his Golden Globe over his fellow nominees Idris Elba (“Luther”), David Oyelowo (“Nightingale”), Mark Rylance (“Wolf Hall”) and Patrick Wilson (“Fargo”).

The year 2015 was a great year for Isaac; not only for “Show Me a Hero,” but for his role in the latest Star Wars movie, “The Force Awakens,” in which he plays rebel pilot Poe. Isaac has received good reviews for his character, which will continue in future Star Wars episodes.

At a press conference after the Golden Globes, Isaac said that when approached by Simon to star in “a six-hour miniseries about housing segregation and municipal law, I had to take a moment to think about it.” But after learning more about the story and after speaking to Nay Wasesko, “My heart broke for them. I wanted to tell their story and really try to understand this difficult time that wasn’t so long ago,” he said.

Don’t forget Yonkers, Oscar, on your journey to Hollywood stardom!
