Five Star Premier Resorts Names Perfume Employee of the Year

Distinguished Women of Yonkers: Helen Henkel

Field left are John Musico, Five Star Premier Resorts executive director; Mary Kate Perfume; and Jerry Anzalone, Five Star Premier Resort’s regional vice president.

Last week, Mayor Mike Spano recognized Yonkers women who have made Yonkers a better place by giving back again and again and improving the lives of others. The Yonkers “Women of Distinction Awards” were given to women who, for the first time, were acknowledged by the mayor and the city for their volunteerism.

Yonkers Rising will be highlighting each of these extraordinary women each week, starting with Helen Henkel.

Helen Ann Henkel is a proud to be a lifelong resident of Yonkers’ west side. Devoted raised in Yonkers, her community involvement increased when she was sent to school. She joined the parent support group at PS 9 and became a class mentor. Parent-Teacher Association member, PTSA president and was able to enjoy the company of the diverse population and programs in her community.

“I started volunteering because I had a child with epilepsy, and I wanted to fight for my kid,” said Henkel, whose work with the Epilepsy Association of Westchester is on her long list of community and volunteer activities.

Exhibits held at the elementary school enabled her to meet and appreciate the creative individuals of different cultures that were willing to share their talents and beliefs with others while promoting education and supporting children. She and her family attended the theater, concerts, plays, exhibits and programs held throughout the city, which enabled her to meet even more dedicated volunteers, many of whom asked her to join them.

“I help raise money for kids, for scholarships and free concerts. I don’t have any extra money, so my kids have all the free concerts and free concerts. I want to perpetuate those opportunities for the next generation,” said Henkel.

School principal Ed Watson instructed her to file with the Board of Education to become a paid volunteer. “You are here every day for almost as many hours as I am and it is time you were paid for some of your time,” he said.

Henkel became a school aide for a few hours a day until budget cuts eliminated her position. She said, “I was and am still very fortunate.”

Henkel, who was recognized for her work with the Epilepsy Association of Westchester, is on her long list of community and volunteer activities.

Helen’s main love was and remains the Yonkers Board of Ethics in 1989 by Mayor Nicholas Wasicsko, and as her terms expired, she was reappointed by each mayor and continues to serve.

Today, Henkel serves on the Yonkers Board of Ethics as supervisor, is a board member of the Exchange Club of Yonkers, is chairman of the Yonkers citywide spelling bee, and a member of the Fine Arts Orchestral Society (a support organization of the Yonkers Performing Arts Council).

“I really get more back than you give when you volunteer, and when you see the fruits of your labor, you feel good,” said Henkel, who thanked Mayor Spano for initiating the Women of Distinction Awards. “I’m on Cloud 9 because we were all recognized and I thank the mayor, who is very community minded and does a lot for the community,” said Henkel.

You can find all of Helen’s volunteer activities in the paper. Congratulations to you, Helen, and thanks for your service to Yonkers!

Rebecca Pronsky, Brooklyn’s own indie rock artist, will debut her new album, “Only Daughters,” that spans from Brooklyn to the UK with stops in Edinburgh, Glasgow and more.

“Miles to Dayton” blends elements of folk, rock, classical and funk into an irresistible invigorating rhythm section that stirs up the creative stew. The M2D recipe is simple: four-part vocal harmony, clever songwriting, improvised violin and cello, and an infectious rhythm section that stirs up the creative stew.

This, Too is our Parkways to the White House

By Eric W. Schoen

White House Tours stop, TSA craziness, back-pack safety and trucks on our parkways – a lot going on this week!

White House Tours

White House tours are now $74,000 a week and are up $50,000 over the past seven months. That is the price for the 37 uniformed officers who earn $50 an hour for 40-hour weeks to secure public tours through the White House outer ring.

Our White House.

We are not talking about the billions our country spends fighting wars. We are not talking about the billions we send in our pockets to corporations and contractors all over the globe. $2 million allows our legislators to have access to democracy. As part of the sequestration dismantling, the Secret Service and the president’s folks have decided to end tours of the White House for folks like you and me.

Many people plan their trips to Washington, D.C. months in advance, obtaining tickets to the White House tours through their congressional representatives. With charity blooms in full bloom late this month and summer around the corner, the number of visitors to our nation’s capital increases dramatically.

Our representatives in Congress – Congresswoman Eliot Engel and Senator Chuck Schumer and Kirsten Gillibrand – need to go to full bloom later this month and summer around for White House tours through their congress people.

Why are they foolishness, the Secret Service and the president’s folks who actually take them to the tourist? On airplanes and trains through our nation’s airports involved with these decisions?

Nothing disturbs more than when we see people take off their shoes and walk barefoot on the dirty airport floors to go through security screening. And I will never forget the time I was leaving Fort Lauderdale and a man was fight ing to bring his solid cheese (OK) in liquid (not OK) through security to New York City. What kind of cheese do they have in Florida that you can bring it on a plane? OK)

Some Help for Yonkers

My campaign for Mayor Bloomberg! Something needs to be done about the heavy backpacks students and others carry on their backs. Don’t get me wrong, I am happy to see rolling backpacks available in our nation’s stores. So what if you use the wheels on your backpack? The problem with backpacks is they are too heavy and they are creating a nation that will suffer from back problems. How often have you observed someone hunched over with a heavy backpack on their back? Rolling backpacks solve the problem, so go readily available in our nation’s stores. So what if you use the wheels on your backpack?

Mayer Bloomberg, backpack safety is something we all can agree on!

Low Bridges on Our Parkways

On Monday, Sen. Schumer and federal officials came to Westchester to announce new measures to prevent trucks from entering local parkways. Like clockwork, on Tuesday, a truck hit the Yonkers Avenue overpass on the Saw Mill Parkway. The overpass was back up for six miles. We need to stop these trucks from entering our parkways by placing hard barriers, similar to the lights on our roadways, at the entrances to our parkways. If the place where barriers will send a message to truckers to stay off the road. If that doesn’t work, then we need to look at the barriers and damage their rig, at least they won’t be blocking traffic on the center path.

Signage on entrance to the parkways and patrol on the road prior to blocking overpasses and bridges is simply not working. Give my idea a try!

This, too is our parkways to the White House

Rearr Erica Schen in the twoondayke and make your own miniature panorama, or a pocket-size “endless landscape” to take home.

The Hudson River Museum will offer special family programs throughout the month. Art projects will be created Sundays, March 17, 24 and 30 from 1 to 4 p.m., when local artist Dahlia Broul will create a large-scale panoramic mural with participants. Be a designer and make your own miniature panoramic, a pocket-size “endless landscape” to take home.

The event is free with museum admission, or $5 for adults and $3 for seniors and youth age 5 to 16.

When considering a remodeling project, the first step is to talk to people who know about such plans and issues. After all, you don’t do this often, so why not consult with the people who do?

But who to talk to? As Larkin noted, “The only person they consult with must be someone who offers a free consultation.”

If you pay an hourly rate, you might get what you pay for. If you are doing something that is too much good for free, you might want to consult with someone who offers a free consultation.

If you are not sure how much to pay for design, you can try to get the free consultation from the designers or design a whole scheme for your project. It’s advisable to do this before you start the remodeling project. It’s a good idea to check what others think of the design before you start the remodeling project.

At a free consultation, the designer will give you their ideas and discuss the potential costs associated with the project. The designer will also discuss the potential materials and installation of the project. The designer will also discuss the potential costs of labor, materials, and any other potential costs associated with the project.

But then, when you’re ready to select some of the materials and installation, you must be careful. If you try to have them do the job for you, you might end up having to pay more than you anticipated. This is because if you try to save money by doing the job yourself, you might end up having to pay more than you anticipated. This is because if you try to save money by doing the job yourself, you might end up having to pay more than you anticipated. This is because if you try to save money by doing the job yourself, you might end up having to pay more than you anticipated.

But remember, you shouldn’t do things and seek out advice.

The first step is to talk to people who have knowledge and experience about your project. By all means, get as many free consultations as you have time for. Hopefully you’ll find someone who’s comfortable enough with them to let them do the job for you.

Of course, there are times when intellectual theft is the only way to get the job done. If you move forward, the designer, contractor, or architect will eventually show you their proposed design for the project. Please don’t try to copy it (or copy it exactly) down everything that they show you, with the hope of using their design and creativity and having their own creative process. It’s illegal to use this information without their permission.

But, if you’re ready to start planning a project, all of these free consultations can be used for free. Hopefully you’ll pick up a couple of good ideas from each one. Then, when you’re ready to select someone, make a commitment.

Council Minority Leader John Larkin.

With the opening of Ridge Hill Shopping Center’s new Legoland Discovery Center in Yonkers, we celebrated another important milestone for our community. Minority Leader John Larkin introduced a resolution to approve the action taken by the Yonkers City Council. Larkin pointed out that Legoland Discovery Center-Yonkers, the only Legoland Discovery Center that does not list its host city in Yonkers, will become the first Legoland Discovery Center to proudly list its location as Lego land.

The Yonkers City Council passed the resolution that does not list its host city is Yonkers, which is the only Legoland Discovery Center-Yonkers, and to update the National Crime Prevention Council’s website at www.ncpc.org/topics/intellectualproperty/sha. Both of these organizations take this matter very seriously.

Incorporated in Delaware, the Yonkers Humane Society is constantly on the lookout for new homes for all its pets - both cats and dogs.

Thunder is about 3 years old and 70 pounds. He has a brown, black, and gold coat. His demeanor is shown to be a little above average, with a head turn up, tail wagging, and ears flapping around.

Thunder loves people, cats, and other dogs of like size, but he's not too fond of toy breeds.

Visit Thunder at the Yonkers Animal Shelter, 1200 Central Park Ave., Yonkers, NY 10710.
Hot Topics in Health Care: Inpatient, Outpatient and Losing Patience

By Michael LaMagna, Esq.

In order to be considered inpatient, you must be admitted to the hospital with a physician’s order. You are admitted inpatient for hospital services after being given emergency department services and if the physician hasn’t written an order to admit you. In order to protect yourself, you need to carefully review the paperwork pertaining to what the status of your hospital stay is and if you don’t agree, you can file an adverse decision. However, this has been the situation for quite some time. In short – in some cases 48 hours – your hospital stay is considered an inpatient stay instead of an outpatient stay. There are ways to combat this mental harassment. So remember to have patience and take notes when talking to hospital staff.

The decision of when to retire is personal for everyone and varies based on the individual. It is not considered as legal advice or should be relied upon as one. However, if you start collecting benefits in as little as 15 minutes. In many cases, there are no forms to sign or documents to send, once you submit your application electronically, payment of federal benefits is now mandatory, with few exceptions. Spring Into Retirement

By Susan Sobel

Social Security District Manager, Yonkers

When you work and pay Social Security taxes, you are entitled to Social Security retirement benefits. If you were born in 1929 or later, you will need to work and pay taxes for at least 10 years (10 years of work) to qualify for retirement benefits. We determine the amount of your benefit by both how long you work and how much you earn. The higher your lifetime earnings, the higher your monthly benefit. If you choose to work after your full retirement age, you may be able to take advantage of a larger payment. Generally, your benefit is based on the smaller of the 36 months with the highest earnings or the 9 years prior to your full retirement age. This means that if you have paid for a hospital stay, you have a right to ask hospital staff, if an order has not been written, if you want to extend your hospital stay. The SNUG program has played a vital role in the decrease of the violent crime in the city of Yonkers. Mayor Mike Spano said it is due to the hard work of the Yonkers Police Department and community efforts. “SNUG is the 113th largest city in the country and one of the top 10 safest cities. Police Commissioner Charles Gardner said it is due to the hard work of the police department. “The SNUG workers in Yonkers are mostly young people who have served time. They are helping to reduce gang violence and gun violence. It represents the types of efforts that help reduce crime.”

The program is uncertain due to funding concerns. The SNUG Program has saved lives and helped young people stay out of trouble. The program has been successful, and it has proven results. The program has been a great success for the city of Yonkers.

Maurice M. Skapit is said to be the hand that directed the Yonkers Delegation to the capitol for the purpose of its representation. The Yonkers Delegation to the capitol is comprised of local elected officials and the state Senate Delegation. The Yonkers Delegation is comprised of members of the Yonkers Delegation of the State Senate.

Yonkers’ Korean War

Yonkers, New York — The Korean War started on June 25, 1950, and ended on July 27, 1953. The Korean War was a conflict between North Korea and South Korea that resulted in a stalemate. The war was fought between North Korea, which was supported by China and the Soviet Union, and South Korea, which was supported by the United States and its allies. The war was a major military conflict that resulted in the deaths of thousands of people.

The war ended in a compromise, and the two Koreas were not formally declared to be at war. The Korean War resulted in a divided Korea, with North Korea remaining communist and South Korea remaining democratic.

The Korean War is remembered by many as a tragic conflict that resulted in the deaths of thousands of people. It is also remembered as a conflict that brought the United States and its allies closer together.
