Rubbo Attracts Huge Crowd To Campaign Kick-Off

By Dan Murphy
On the 35th birthday, April 24, John Rubbo officially launched his candidacy for Yonkers City Council in the Fourth District. Surrounded by more than 150 community leaders, business people, neighbors, and family, he championed a message of moving forward for a better Yonkers.

"The way forward is clear," said Rubbo. "Yonkers wants strong leaders, leaders who know what it takes to make sacrifices in business. Leaders who have the experience to prepare for Yonkers' future and the future generations who will call Yonkers home. Yonkers is where I was born, Yonkers is where I was raised, Yonkers is where I started my first business with co-founder Nick Califano, and our families. Yonkers is where I am running my two sons, Dominick and John, with my beloved wife, Dawn. This city and my love for it is why I am announcing my candidacy for Yonkers City Council."

Walk Disney said, “If you can dream it, you can do it.”

Madison Allen makes history last week when she became the first female pitcher in Yonkers baseball history to take the mound for a boys’ varsity baseball team. Piling on for YMA, Allen pitched a wild game, striking out for five innings and giving up only one run as YMA defeated Palisades Prep 6-4.

How does she do it? YMA baseball coach Stephen DelMartin said it’s her ability to throw strikes. “She may not have the velocity, or the speed that other pitchers do, but she throws strikes and that’s why she’s one of our top pitchers.”

Dems Scramble for Another Candidate

By Dan Murphy
Here’s the story as we got it from a county Democratic insider…

Democratic Senate Conference Leader Andrea Stewart-Cousins.

Yonkers Democrats have nominated Matt Orefice as their candidate for City Council in the Sixth District representing northwest and northeast Yonkers. Current County Chairman John Larkin is term-limited, leaving an open seat that Orefice hopes to fill.

Orefice (pronounced Ori-fish-ee) is a lifelong Yonkers resident, homeowner, father of two children in the Yonkers Public Schools, and a member of the Yonkers Firefighters Local 328 and the Yonkers Firefighters Local 456. He works as an environmental chemist for Westchester County’s Department of Laboratories and Research conducting water testing and lead poisoning monitoring.

His volunteer work in the district includes being a member of the First Precinct Police SWAT Team, a Parent-Teacher Association dad, a Yonkers Partner In Education student mentor, and a sports coach for the Woodlawn Boys and Girls Club. After a lifetime in Yonkers, Orefice said he wants to take the next step in public service and join the City Council.

“I have a history of service to the people of Yonkers, and I’m looking to continue that with this opportunity,” he said. “I’m entering this race as a concerned parent, resident and taxpayer, not as someone with a political agenda.”

Stew Leonard’s Donates To Yonkers PAL

Lindsey Francis of YOHO Studios 425, 578 Nepperhan Ave., has always been drawn to the art world and creating art, but it wasn’t until she attended Penn State that she fell in love with clay and creating ceramic pottery. The hands-on and physical nature of the art form allowed Francis to express herself in a way that was transformative and self-healing.

“Every time I’m working on my sculpture, I’m working on myself,” she said. “It’s a way for me to be creative and honest, and to be free from my perceived limitations.”

While Francis considers everyone her audience, her work speaks especially to those struggling with chronic or mental illness. Her dreamy, stream of consciousness paintings and therapeutic clay work with ceramic tiles have helped her through her own difficult times, and she said she hopes to empower others with the knowledge that they are not alone in their suffering.

In sharing her most vulnerable moments through art, a piece of her work will at times push the boundaries of the viewer’s comfort zone, but at the same time always encourages a conversation.

“I consider these conversations to be part of the work,” said Francis. “We live in a world of judgment, and with chronic illness and mental health there is always more than what is seen at first glance.”

Francis has been in studio number 425 at 578 Nepperhan Ave. since November 2015, where she spends as much time as possible. “I just try to do my best by myself and push myself while I’m there,” she said. “Because of that my work is growing faster than ever.”

The feedback from the public at YOHO’s 13th annual Open Studios was positive. One woman likened the experience of viewing Francis’ work to that of artist Frida Kahlo, which was an amazing compliment to the young artist, being that Kahlo is a major influence of Francis’ work.

Lindsey Francis is currently displaying her work at Urban Studio Unbound at 46 Main St., Yonkers, and also on her Instagram page @more.than.muddy. More information about Francis and her work can also be found at www.lindseyfrancisceramics.com.

Eric W. Schoen and Mert Fagan Headlines for the Press

Mert Fagan, by the way, does not want to be remembered as someone who never belonged hosting a television show, despite the fact that it was so highly rated.

Let's be clear: The antics of O'Reilly and Fox, and the kind of stuff occurred in the corporate atmosphere in the 1990s and before, were responsible for multiple sexual harassment claims. And for me, there is no excuse for this kind of behavior. It was one or two, I was not sure exactly, but who would have known that one or two cases you might be getting a second look, when you have numerous women accusing you of sexual harassment claims, as they say, “Houston, we have a problem.”

In most situations like what is occurring at Fox, a guy like O'Reilly would admit he has a problem. He has to have a problem. If you don't have a problem, but you have a problem... Right? How would you feel if your daughter or granddaughter was in that situation? How would you feel if your daughter or granddaughter was in that situation?

Reported cases have been made to law enforcement, mental health experts in law enforcement and mental health, Opioid Response Teams Helping Youth – the initiative, which tackles tough societal issues with the goal of stopping this behavior. It was, accordingly, hailed and praised by the press. But who will work together to spot the warning signs?

A lot of people – including Westchester’s Patriot Housing – might have been mixed into frozen hash browns. McCain Foods USA recalled bags of its frozen hash browns. McCain Foods USA is recalling bags of frozen hash browns because there were processed and packaged. Image what is in the open-air market, or supermarket. Remember, these products might have been mixed into frozen hash browns, which were processed and packaged. Image what is in the open-air market, or supermarket. Remember, these products.

What is going on in this country with Fox News, you need to know. Does it make sense that you are paying good money for food and it better be safe to eat. And those changes. And those changes are being made and improving. The food need to make sure that it is – or find other food enterprises.

What will we find in the packaged foods that we eat? We can’t live in a bubble. There is no time to hunt the wilds of Yonkers for food. We have to make sure that the food is healthy, the no spin zone. To be honest, every week when we hear a scorpion found crawling in Giant spinach? I’m one of those people who buy salad in the bag for convenience. Even though the bag and the scorpion were not found to product in this case, I had seen this situation when I was working at a supermarket. It is a real safety risk at the supermarket. Remember, these products. Image what is in the open-air market, or supermarket. Remember, these products.

For food and it better be safe to eat. And those changes. And those changes are being made and improving. The food need to make sure that it is – or find other food enterprises.

You will have to take a second chance. There is no illusion that this program will be a success. There is no illusion that this program. That will be the question that Westchester will have to answer.
City to Distribute New, Free Recycling Bins

Yonkers Mayor Mike Spano recently announced that the city will begin distributing new, free recycling bins to residents starting Tuesday, April 25 from 7:30 a.m. to 3 p.m. at the Yonkers Recycling Center, 755 Saw Mill River Road, while supplies last.

The "Get Your New Bin" pilot program, coordinated in partnership with the Yonkers Green City Advisory Committee, is aimed to save taxpayer dollars and to increase the city’s paper recycling rate, according to the mayor.

"As a leader in sustainability, Yonkers continues to find new ways to encourage our residents to be active participants in creating a greener, cleaner city," said Spano. "Recycling is not only good for the environment, but it's good for our taxpayers, too. Recycling is an easy and effective way to make a difference in our environment and our pockets."

In 2015 alone, Yonkers diverted nearly 70,700 tons from the waste stream, saving taxpayers nearly $1.9 million. Currently, Yonkers recycles 45 percent of its waste, well above the Environmental Protection Agency’s goal of 35 percent.

"Because simplifying recycling is key to its success, the Yonkers Green City Advisory Committee is pleased to partner with Mayor Spano and Yonkers to further promote recycling in a way that is already a leader in sustainability," said Helena Higgins, chairperson of the Yonkers Green City Advisory Committee.

"I want to extend my special thanks to the Yonkers Green City Advisory Committee for its partnership and continually providing innovative programs for our city," added Spano.

To obtain a new recycling bin, residents must provide valid New York State photo identification for proof of residency. Bins will be limited to one bin per household, and will be distributed on a first-come, first-serve basis, while supplies last. After April 25, remaining bins will be available Tuesday through Friday from 9 to 11 a.m. at the Yonkers Recycling Center.

For more information on the new recycling bin program, contact the mayor’s Hotline at 914-577-HELP (4357).

Little Cola Needs a Home

The Yonkers Animal Shelter has many pets available for adoption.

Little Cola is a young female, brindle-and-white dog about 2 years old and weighing 45 to 50 pounds. She was terrorized that she will arrive at her forever home and wouldn’t let staff take her for a walk. However, after about three days, she became everyone’s favorite. She is a little Miss and a very sweet dog. She likes treats and likes most other dogs, but has to meet them slowly. She doesn’t like dogs who jump on her and she is not good with kittens. Little Cola loves to cuddle and be shown affection.

Rubbo said he wants to use his experience preparing to pass the budget. If the proper funding is allocated to Yonkers, he will have to create budgets and make tough decisions, he said. “In business, you need to compromise... but then, you have to find solutions to minimize the effects on neighborhoods,” Rubbo said. “That’s a vow; I will always do what is right.”

One supporter came up to Rubbo at his kickoff event and told him: “You have a heart and soul of gold. I believe you have the empathy and compassion that is needed to lead our city.”

It is clear that Rubbo has the experience and the compassion needed to lead our city. He has the ability to make tough decisions while keeping in mind the needs of our residents. He has the heart and soul of gold. Thank you for your support, Rubbo. We need you as our next mayor.

Dear Mr. Murphy:

I am writing on behalf of Yonkers Rising and your coverage of our policies. I must take exception to your treatment of the City of Yonkers. Newary, so far in your story. You've got it wrong.

First, Ms. Scott worked for AIG, the insurance giant that went belly-up in the financial collapse. She was not present at the Grameen Ground and none of the current members of it mentioned that fact either.

Second, your story is Barry McGeary, the president of Yonkers. Your forgiveness for Yonkers Rising photographer Donna Davis recently entities. I'm confident of the success of this campaign with Scott and other Democrats at a recent event.

I'm looking forward to taking a back in his seat for a council race, yet you don't mention it.

I don't know what you were trying to help Marye Scott with by not including these two in your stories. The relationship is that I work for the Teamsters, he said to the Yonkers. "Their membership is important to me, and I'm fortunate to have the opportunity to work with the police to make sure people who call it home, and I'm fortunate to have the best for Yonkers and the children in Yonkers."

Khader will face McLaughlin in the Nov. 7 general election.

As a local homeowner, Orefice vows to make sure the city is not in a long-term budget crisis so we are not in a financial crisis. Either way, you have done a disservice to the City of Yonkers Draft 2016-2017 Annual MS4 Stormwater Report will be avail-

Avenue business-commercial area is not for our constituents. "Here and to work with the police to make sure people who call it home, and I'm fortunate to have the best for Yonkers and the children in Yonkers."

I'm not a political insider; I will work for the library to make publically responsible legislation. "I want to be best for the people who call it home, and I'm fortunate to have the opportunity to work with the police to make sure people who call it home, and I'm fortunate to have the best for Yonkers and the children in Yonkers."

I'm interested in your story on City Council candidate Khader McLaughlin. However, I must take exception to it in the story. There are two people running for the council. I have experience in working at the Teamsters, "said Khader. "Their membership is important to me, and I'm fortunate to have the opportunity to work with the police to make sure people who call it home, and I'm fortunate to have the best for Yonkers and the children in Yonkers."

Science Barge Opens With Critters from Land & Sea

The Science Barge will officially open to the public Saturday, April 29, when Mayor Mike Spano cuts the ribbon on the gangplank at 2 p.m. Among the hands-on science and nature activities will be several oyster stations, where visitors can learn about the importance of oysters as filter feeders, helping to clean the river water and to establish ecosystems.

The Science Barge is a site for the Billion Oyster Project at the New York Harbor School. “Our oysters are growing faster and healthier than the survivors in New York Harbor because our water is cleaner,” said Bob Walters, director of the Science Barge.

Twenty young “citizen scientists” visiting the Science Barge will have the opportunity to participate in the project themselves, and will document the growth of their own bags of baby oysters over the summer. Students from Hastings High School will be sharing their work with oysters on Saturday, as well.

The barge is also one of 11 sites selected by Cornell University’s oyster project. Katie McParland, a post-doctoral student at Cornell’s Department of Natural Resources, has been monitoring the growth and mortality rate of oysters.

“Our oysters are growing faster and healthier than the oysters in New York’s harbor because our water is cleaner,” said Bob Walters, director of the Science Barge.

Activities included water color painting with staff from Groundworks Hudson Valley; honeycomb building with staff from Groundworks Hudson Valley, offering children’s activities and tours of the pillow mussels and wetlands; and yoga and meditation with staff from Green-Wood, offering children’s activities and tours of the pillow mussels and wetlands.

The Science Barge greenhouse will feature pillow mussels and wetlands, which are part of a cutting-edge education initiative for 700 New York students. Groundwork Hudson Valley, the operator of the barge, was one of only six organizations in the country to win a grant from the National Oceanic and Atmospheric Administration to teach climate change and resiliency, in partnership with Columbia University and the Center for the Urban River at Bezaak.

The Science Barge is open to the public on weekends from noon to 6 p.m. through November, offering children’s activities and tours of the pillow mussels and wetlands, hydroponic greenhouses, and energy systems. “Art and Science Sundays” for children offer planting and science activities, crafts, crafting and more from 2 to 4 p.m. from July to November. The Science Barge, located at 99 Dock St., Yonkers, is funded by grants from the City of Yonkers, Con Edison, Croton Energy, Domino Sugar, Green Mountain Energy, Hudson River Foundation, the New York Bridge, and Vista Solar Cranes. George Washington Returns To Philipse Manor Hall

Colonial Day was held April 12 at Philipse Manor Hall and Van der Donck Park, and despite the light rain, 200-plus visitors enjoyed a day of history, games, cider and music. Activities included water color painting with staff from Groundworks Hudson Valley, face painting with the Children’s Department of the Riverfront Library, colonial games on the back lawn, watching a blacksmith stoke his fires and work on iron tools, and PMH staff crushing apples to make fresh juice for visitors while musician Jim Keyes played various instruments from the Revolutionary War period.

President George Washington (aka Michael Griese), who visited Philipse Manor Hall in the 1770s, stopped by with actors Dave Ledis as Gen. Nathanael Greene, who was Washington’s second in command, and Hugh Francis as British Gen. William Howe.
