Three Blind Mice By Charles Roda

Three blind mice in Albany create a physical dependency.

There are masses of human with deep-rooted, gut anger Longing for the soulful respect but none appears on the horizon. The three blind mice in Albany create a physical dependency. The steal the dough of the breadwinners, resulting in economic disasters.
after years of neglect, monies are allocated to the education of students in the city. Officials for the state of YPS buildings. They got when it rains, it pours right in the school children to attend Gorton High School, where 80 percent black and Hispanic. Then look at the public schools in Yonkers, a district more than 80 percent minority. There are still many out money to pay an attorney, relying on a Senate seat.

For the last year, 50 states are fighting over a budget. "The most important issue of today is whether we will have a balanced budget," said Mike Hughes, YPS building official. "The state is not paying us for a building that has been constructed, and we have to pay for it."

The state failed in the past, said Hughes. "We're not asking for a bailout, but we're asking for a fair deal."

Many of you noticed that in Mayor Spano's state of the city address, there was no mention of the status of state aid for the Yonkers Public Library. "We are facing a tough budget this year—what with the new freshman class, the new firefighters have been received and the winning bid will be announced momentarily. We would like to begin negotiations for the new budget, but we cannot do it every year," said Hughes.

The rich and politically sophisticated underclass are the ones that are being targeted. "Our city is facing calls for immediate action," he said. "The state is not paying us for a building that has been constructed, and we have to pay for it."
The Riverfront Library, in partnership with the Yonkers Public Library, will be hosting a virtual screening of "Dramatic Escape" on Thursday, April 12 at 6 p.m. in the community room. This 90-minute award-winning documentary follows a inmate as she embarks on an emotional journey of putting together a stage production of "A Few Good Men," while revealing her personal stories, everyday struggles, and contemplating what redemption is possible.

A panel discussion with RTA prison alumni will follow. During the journey from auditions through carol singing, viewers of "Dramatic Escape" witness the transformative development as individuals and as a ensemble. Personal stories and can- ceal accounts of the crimes that landed them in prison are interwoven with everyday struggles and philosophical considerations of the nature of redemption. Through creative expression in theatre, dance, voice, writing and visual art, the RTA program gives the inmates the opportunity to learn social and cognitive skills that act as a springboard to education, family reuni- on, and, ultimately, successful re-integration into society. RTA reducing violence significantly lower than the national aver- age. "When director Nick Quested approached us about making this film we could never have imagined how it would come together, how it would result, and how beautifully it would encapsulate RTAs mission of transforming lives and building com- munity," said RTA founder and Executive Direc- tor Mark McCormick at 914-377-7017.

Khadher Creates Children With Special Needs Advisory Board

On Monday, April 2, World Autism Awareness Day, City of Yonkers Mayor Mike Spano announced final selections for his newly created Children With Special Needs Advisory Board. Khader has chosen nine qualified professionals, parents and community members to advise him on issues that affect children with special needs. He will also be appointing a special liaison for transition services, to work with the advisory board and the Board of Education. The City Council president said he believes this board will serve as a vital resource for the city’s most vulnerable children.

“I am especially proud that on this day, World Autism Awareness Day, I can announce that my office is working to help special needs children access the input and support they need,” said Khader. “This is an area where health, safety and health impact one out of every 68 children, and it’s time that we dedicate more resources to ensure these children are getting the level of care and the quality education they need.”

Members of the board will serve for two-year terms and responsibilities will include identifying the eminent special education concerns within Yonkers Public Schools, analyzing special needs data, gathering feedback from the community; brainstorming ideas for potential solutions and effective policies to improve special education funding and resources; and raising awareness and helping eliminate the stigma attached to disabilities.

Findings from the efforts of the Special Needs Advisory Board will be presented in a report to the Board of Education.

The board members include:

- Ammar Amin, is a director of academic and behavioral interventions for the Yonkers Board of Education and specializes in autism services. He is strong and dedicated advocate for students with disabilities and continues to work to broaden the importance of education for children with special needs. Ammar will serve as an appointed special liaison for the Children with Special Needs Advisory Board and the BOE.
- Gunter Binstock is a retired long-time parent co-ordinator of Yonkers Public Schools. She continues to advocate for and is committed to helping obtain more services for special education children.
- Susan Nessen Sobel obtained her Doctorate in Psychology in school-clinical psychology from Yeshiva University. She is also a longtime Yonkers resident of five years.
- Jennifer Pantaleo is a special education teacher with vast experience in the educational development of children with special needs. She was also a former vice president of the Yonkers Federation of Teachers Union.
- Claire Conner is a special needs child and also is an advocate for children with disabilities for nearly 20 years. She is dedicated to helping children obtain more resources, services and benefits that will help improve special education.
- Dr. Arthur Maloney received his Doctorate of Public Administration from the City University of New York, CUNY Graduate Center and is a doctoral candidate in Urban Education at the CUNY Graduate Center and teaches at the Special Education Department at Hunter College and City College. He is also an officer of the United States National Guard.

Mayor Mike Spano, along with the Yonkers Police and Fire departments and members of the community, grew to see emotional trauma, fear and conflict when first responders enter homes of those with special needs. Each day in the jurisdiction is dependent upon self-reporting. Disabilities to registries may be as follows: physical, intellectual, emotional, developmental challenges, medical illness and post-traumatic stress disorder; vision and hearing challenges; and age, language barriers, barriers, services, etc.

Mayor Spano charged our board to identify and respond to concerns affecting Yonkers citizens with disabilities, and Gene Mokris, the Mayor’s Disability Advisory Board chairman. "We believe this new program helps us to fulfill our mission First Responders Disability Registry is vital, and it must work for us.

Enrollment forms are available at Yonkers Public Libraries, Yonkers City Hall and online. Residents with questions should email mokris@gmail.com.

Yonkers Creates First Responders Disability Registry

Mayor Mike Spano, along with the Yonkers Police and fire departments and members of the mayor’s Disability Advisory Board, reintroduced the city’s First Responders Disability Registry. The registry is a database of city residents emergency medical emergency located at the home of a person with special needs.

Yonkers’ First Responders Disability Registry is an opportunity to better serve a growing population in our city,” said Spano. “I applaud our Disability Advisory Board for recognizing a problem that will provide additional comfort and peace of mind during these precious moments during an emergency.”

The registry looks to eliminate or lessen emotional trauma, stress and conflict when first responders enter homes of those with special needs. Enrollment in the registry is dependent upon self-reporting. Disabilities to registries may be as follows: physical, intellectual, emotional, developmental challenges, medical illness and post-traumatic stress disorder; vision and hearing challenges; and age, language barriers, barriers, services, etc.

Engel Visits Parkland, Fla.
For ‘March For Our Lives’

Congressman Eliot Engel, a member of the House Gun Violence Prevention Task Force, recently joined thousands of students and gun safety advocates in Parkland, Fla., in the Parkland “March For Our Lives.” Engel went to stand in solidarity with the students, parents, teachers and faculty of Marjory Stoneman Douglas High School, as well as every other American who has been affected by gun violence in the United States.

“All across the country yesterday, people took to the streets, many of them students, to say ‘enough is enough’ when it comes to gun violence,” said Engel. “The example these young men and women have shown has been extraordinary and truly inspirational. I traveled to Parkland to stand with the community, and to let them know that whether it’s a school in Florida, a neighborhood in the Bronx or a town in Westchester, everyone is in this together. While there, I met so many incredible people from all over our great nation, and was amazed by their passion. Gun violence affects us all, whether directly or indirectly, and it’s long past time we as a nation came together to end this terrible epidemic.”

groups. Special thanks to PAL board member Dave Villar for his help with the Easter Bunny. There were smiling faces on the large crowd of families and children as they enjoyed a day of finding eggs and other activities. PAL staff and volunteers helped make it a great day as the kids ran out to collect their eggs, each with something inside, with the hopes of finding the golden egg.

Leviya Thomas was the winner of the golden egg for the 5- to 8-year-old age group; Keesha Rasseau found the “Chris Egg,” named for longtime PAL board member Chris Palandra, who founded the egg hunt and kept it going for more than 35 years; April Ojeda found the golden egg for the 4 and under age group; and Dexter Betanzos found the golden egg for the youngest age group.

Thanks for all the hard work, Easter Bunny. See you next year!
