The hijab, burqa and other coverings are some of the most recognizable symbols of Islam, and are often depicted as forms of female oppression. Yusef Abdul Jaleel uses illustrations to combat negative stereotypes associated with Islamic clothing and modesty in his new show “Covered: Celebrating Muslim Women,” opening June 7 at the Riverfront Art Gallery at the Yonkers Public Library. The exhibit runs from June 7 to 24, with an opening reception June 7 at 5-7 p.m. that will feature discussions with the artist and performances. The reception is held in conjunction with the First Thursday Gallery Hop, which celebrates its one-year anniversary in June.

"Covered: Celebrating Muslim Women” is a series of brightly colored graphic designs depicting various Muslims around the world showing the variety and beauty of Muslim women. Jaleel explores the world showing the variety and beauty of Muslim women. Jaleel explores his new show “Covered: Celebrating Muslim Women” which celebrates its one-year anniversary in June.

Yusef Abdul Jaleel (Jerrard Scott Joseph) is an African-American digital media artist who specializes in vector-based illustration, living in Yonkers. With more than 20 years of experience in digital print production, he has created media and clothing geared toward the Muslim experience in America. As a devout Muslim revert, he attempts to convey art that is both permissible by many Muslims who share the detailed facial imagery and non-Muslims alike.

The opening reception is free and open to the public and is part of the monthly First Thursday Gallery Hop, which takes place on the first Thursday of each month, attracting hundreds of attendees to downtown Yonkers. It is produced by Haifa Bint-Kadi, founder of the First Thursday Gallery Hop, and sponsored by the Yonkers Gallery Group, an alliance of galleries including Blue Door Art Center, Friends of Philippe Mauer Hall, Urban Studio Unbound, and Yonkers Riverfront Library.

For more information, contact Bint-Kadi at 914-500-7100.

The Riverfront Art Gallery is on the fourth floor of the Yonkers Riverfront Library, located at 4 Amy Larkin Center, and is accessible to people with disabilities. Parking is available at sidewalk meters and for a fee in the nearby Buena Vista and Warburton parking garages.

Members of the Yonkers community joined Mayor Mike Spano, members of the Yonkers Public Library staff, and Friends of the Yonkers Library on May 10 to celebrate the renovation and renewal of the Grinton I. Will Library on Central Avenue.

The busy library branch has remained open while in unique facade on the west-facing side of the building was removed. The brightly colored panels that used to adorn the outside of the library have been paid homage to in the form of sleek bars that grace the new, lighter sun shades. And the large windows that face Central Avenue are now more prominent and open, and at two stories high, brighten the reading and learning experience for young and old.

The exterior changes include swapping the single-pane windows for double panes, which will reduce outside noise and freezing temperatures. The library’s concrete panels were replaced on all sides with a terracotta material that has a similar appearance.

The improved Grinton I. Will Library.

The celebration was also an opportunity to commemorate the 125th anniversary of the Yonkers Public Library. The party started with Spano cutting the ribbon on the renovations at the Will Library. Remarks were made by Library Director Ed Falcone, Library Board President Anietra Guinier-Santos and Foundation President Nancy Maron.

Redefinitions and dedications from local res- taurants and bakeries were enjoyed by the guests, friends and staff at the library, and a cake was cut by Yonkers Rising’s own Eric Schoen, who is also president of the Friends of the Yonkers Library. The Joey Berkley Band provided entertainment, and Foundation Director Teresa Patno leads a children’s art project.

Grinton I. Will Library opened in November 1962. It was designed by architect Eli Rabineau, who was active in Westchester designing other public buildings such as the Bet Torah in Mount Kisco and Montrose School 27 in the City of Yonkers. Rabineau’s vision of the Will Library remains in the renovation.

Nader Sayegh

The nomination was announced on the convention floor by Yonkers Democratic Committee Second Vice Chairman Carlos Moran, and seconded by longtime Democratic district leader and Yonkers educator Gerry Jerome.

The Arc Westchester, the county’s largest agency supporting individuals with intellectual and developmental disabilities, including those on the autism spectrum, recently hosted its 30th annual fundraiser, the Arc Westchester’s Gala at the DoubleTree Tarrytown. The event celebrated the organization’s 250 business and community partner- eners throughout the county who provide employment opportunities to those that The Arc Westchester supports.

“Today, we’re proud to salute employers who exemplify a commitment to inclusion in the workplace through meaningful employment opportuni- ties for individuals with autism and other developmental disabilities, as well as employees who continue to make so proud of their successes on the job,” said Executive Director Richard Swi- niarski. “The Arc Westchester continues to maintain that employment rate for individuals with developmental disabilities of over 60 percent versus 33 percent nationwide.”

The morning’s top honor, the Share of Voice Business Partner Award, was presented to Regeneron, which has participated in The Arc Westchester’s Employer program for over seven years and currently em- ployes eight individuals with developmental dis- abilities.

Sally Pauly, senior vice president of human resources, was on hand to accept the award and make special remarks.

“This is a special honor to accept on Regen- teron’s behalf,” she said. “We’re proud to be a partner and to have provided this great oppor- tunity for individuals who are coming to us through The Arc Westchester, and to help work with other local businesses in our com- munity to support local workforce employers to do the same. We’re creating a profound partnership, regard- less of organization or affiliation, for the benefit of our community. To fulfill Regeneron’s mis- sion, we need to create an inclusive environment where the value of diversity can be fully realized – a value where each and every employee is able to make a meaningful contribution.”

Additional awards presented at the event included the Advocate Award, given to Virginia Knize of County Children’s Center; the Bridge to Work Forward; the Continuing Partner Award, given to Lexington Square Cafe; the Distinguished Partner Award, given to DiGiorno; the New Business Partner Award, given to By the Way Bakery; and the Promoting Independence Award, given to Westchester County Arts.

Governors Island has been named executive director and CEO of the organization, effective June 15. Guzmán, who currently serves as executive director and CEO of the organization, was named to the post as he will act as his own commissioner.

The event celebrated the 30th anniversary of Playland Park, the county’s largest amusement park, and honored the winners of the Share of Voice Business Partner Award. The event also featured a special tribute to the Saunders Trades School Fund, Commemoration of the Loss of These Men, and the Veterans Day Observance.

The author and other lead actor is Cobb, the Tony Award-winning director and playwright Keith Hamilton Cobb, and co-founder of the 45-year-old Youth Theatre International.

The play examines the critical topic of extra-judicial police shootings of unarmed black men, said Johnson. “It is not a play based in bias or yelling or spreading any ideology, but rather a conversation and a very important dialogue about what might happen from a human experience which results in these tragedies. It also involves deeper questions of race in America, perceptions, bias, codes of silence, and the reality of crime in inner-city communities. Above all, it’s open for discussion between police authoritites and young men and women in our communities.

The author and other lead actor is Cobb, the Emmy-nominated television star and author of “And then there were four,” “The Young and the Readless” and “All My Children,” with “CJ in MiMi,” “Fresh Prince of Bel Air” and “The Twilight Zone.”

Johnson is also co-founder of the 45-year-old performing arts school and repertory company called Youth Theatre International, based in Yonkers.

The play was commissioned by the Sarah Lawrence College Theatre Outreach Department under the direction of Allen Lang.
